GOOD SEED TRAIN HERE

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT CITY HALL LAST EVENING AND TRAIN THIS MORNING

The Better Seed and Livestock demonstration train reached Ada at 6:45 yesterday evening. It went back to Stonewall this morning and returned to Ada shortly after ten, remaining until noon. The train consisted of six cars and was in charge of R. W. Hockaday, industrial agent of the Katy, and Prof. T. M. Jeffords of the A. & M. College. The train is run at the expense of the roads over which it is scheduled, a fact indicating how much stress they lay on teaching up to date farming methods to the citizens of the counties through which their lines run.

The program at the city hall last evening began shortly after seven o'clock with an illustrated lecture on good roads by Prof. Jeffords. Every feature of good and bad roads was shown by means of the stereopticon and many good points about construction of roads were brought out. It was indeed an eye opener to most citizens of Oklahoma who are painfully familiar with all kinds of bad roads but whose acquaintance with good ones is exceedingly limited. He stated that any county desiring to build good roads can secure an engineer from the national government free of cost.

A moving picture film showing the difference in methods of handling a dairy in a sanitary and an unsanitary condition was an important feature of the occasion. The conversion of the old farmer to modern methods was a painful process but when it came it was thorough. It was only when the life of his little grandson was almost sacrificed from infection from the milk from his dairy that the old fellow came around. In commenting on the difference on old and modern methods, Prof. Jeffords stated that in New York the sterilized milk from dairies known to be conducted properly, readily sold for 25¢ per quart.

Another illustrated lecture was delivered by Prof. C. E. Sanborn, entomology of the college on the habits and dangers arising from the common house fly. It is only in recent times that people have come to a realization of the dangers arising from this little pest.

A number of views in and around the college were shown. These included pictures of all departments and the students engaged in actual work.

This morning at the train Prof. M. M. Woodson gave a lecture on hogs, hog cholera and the art of raising swine. He also showed two hogs, one poor and the other fat, to illustrate the profit. According to his figures corn fed properly to hogs should bring about $1.50 per bushel.

Next on program was a lecture on draft horses by Prof. Jas. A. Wilson, director of the Experiment Station. Two magnificent percherons were exhibited and the good points shown. He named the various things to be noted in judging a horse.

He also lectured on types of beef and dairy cattle, exhibiting a short-horn bull weighing 1,850 pounds which he declared embodied most of the requisites of a good beef animal. By way of dairy stock he brought out a jersey cow and pointed out her good points. He also showed an old range cow which he said was valuable in breeding up graded cattle.

Prof. Jeffords took up the subject of good corn, and gave some valuable hints on selecting good seed.

Prof. A. C. Hartenbower, of the department of agronomy, delivered a lecture on cotton. He recommended Mebane's Triumph as being best adapted to Oklahoma, Storm Proof and Cook's Improved being next in order.

Prof. Sanborn gave a chart lecture on the boll weevil and boll worm. Lack of space forbids a more extended mention of these lectures in this issue, but we intend to reproduce the strong points in each during the next few days.

The exhibit car was something of a revelation in itself. It contained specimens of almost every kind of work done by the students in the A. & M. College as well as the district agricultural schools. Penmanship, drawing, iron work, carpentering, cooking, fruit canning, needle work, and other things too numerous to mention had their place in the exhibit and spoke in eloquent terms of the practical side of the education which the state is giving to its young citizens.

Last evening not fewer than 600 people attended the lectures at the city hall, and this morning the crowd at the train could not have been under 1,500. The public schools and the normal were there in full force, and the children allowed to march through the exhibit car and see the specimens for themselves.

Many farmers had come in to see and hear and a large number of citizens of the town were also present.

The gentlemen in charge of the train expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the interest shown by the people of the east side. Last fall when 40,000 people on the west side visited the train, they thought it was something great, but the east sideers are going there several better. The train has been out only a week thus far, but already no fewer than 26,000 people have been to see it.

MIGHT HAVE MET WITH FOUL PLAY

DEATH OF WALLACE HENRY OF ROFF, WHOSE MANGLED REMAINS WERE FOUND ON FRISCO RAILWAY SUNDAY LOOKS SUSPICIOUS

The lifeless and mangled body of Wallace Henry, an Indian who lived four miles west of Roff, was found on the Frisco railway track there Sunday morning between the bridge on Blue and old town. The remains were taken to Delberg for burial yesterday.

He was last seen alive about eleven o'clock Saturday night at Roff, and was in company of two men in a buggy going in the direction of the railroad. It is said Henry had a considerable amount of money on his person at the time he was in town, none of which was found on the body next morning.

It is reported that the buggy in which he left town that night was found hitched in Roff at six o'clock Sunday morning.

As he bore the name of being a good, sober Indian, there is a rumor abroad that he met his death by foul play and was robbed; the body being placed on the Frisco track in order that the north bound Hustler would run over it, making it appear that he had been accidentally killed by the train.

If he were killed by the cars, he was the fourth life lost near the bridge on Blue at Roff in like manner within the last six years.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON GOOD ROADS BILL

Oklahoma City, Jan. 31.—The committee on roads and highways Monday afternoon recommended to the house that the good roads bill pass. The measure vitalizes section 1, article 16 of the state constitution relating to public roads.

The bill creates a state department of highways, provides for the appointment of a highway commissioner, prescribes his duties and fixes the salary at $3,000 a year. It also creates the office of engineer at a salary of $3,000 a year. The commissioner to be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate. The engineer shall be selected by the commissioner.

Levy of One Mill

The bill provides for a levy of one mill on all taxable property. One section makes the state liable for 50 per cent of the cost of maintenance and construction of roads, the counties 25 per cent and the road improvement district 25 per cent. If a county does not vote bonds for building a road the state and the road improvement district shall bear the total expenses of construction.

All contracts for building shall be signed by the commissioner subject to the approval of the board of affairs. An appropriation of $15,000

PROPOSITION SUBMITTED TO RAILROAD PROMOTER

The 25,000 club has signed and forwarded a proposal to the promoter of the Sallisaw-Lawton railroad, offering a bonus of $35,000 for the road when it is in operation to Ada, and $15,000 additional if Ada is made a division point. This proposition does not promise anything to be paid in advance.

The club feels certain that the citizens of Ada will make good in case the road is secured, but has no intention of promising anything for a paper railroad. It will be some days before an answer can be had from the promoters and until then nothing further can be done in the matter.

MAY PUBLICLY HORSE WHIP TOBACCO USERS IN ZION CITY

Wilbur Glenn Volva Regains His Power War Against Chewers and Smokers Will Be Waged.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Horsewhipping in public promises to become the method of punishing tobacco chewers and smokers in Zion City. It all depends upon the result of the city election in April. Wilbur Glenn Volva, overseer and successor to the late John Alexander Dowie, is confident that he will be successful at the polls and regain the power wrested from him by "independents" a year ago.

Volva, in addressing a meeting attended by more than 1,200 of his followers in Zion City tabernacle yesterday outlined the plan of administration he would effect after the election. He renewed his declaration of war against tobacco users and said he would appoint a vigilance committee of prominent citizens to horsewhip on sight any user of tobacco.

WITH THE CITY COUNCILMEN

The city dads had a comparatively short session last night during which time business was expedited somewhat faster than usual.

The Katy assessment ordinance was passed on the second reading, after which approximately $500 in claims were presented and allowed.

R. H. Harris who says he has the California fever offered his resignation as night man at the fire station. The resignation was accepted and Clarence West was appointed to fill the vacancy. The matter of electing a street sweeper was deferred indefinitely.

The matter of making some effort to have the refuse hauled away from the city fire station was discussed for the "tenth" time. A motion to have it carted away passed without opposition.

The Shelby Downard Asphalt Co. offered a maintenance bond to guarantee the repair of the streets for five years which was not approved because the bond omitted to specify a definite time in which the work of repairing the streets should begin after notice had been served on the above named company. This provision will be incorporated in the bond which will beyond a doubt will be accepted by the city next Monday night.

The city engineer's estimate on the paving completed was received and $14,000 in bonds ordered turned over to the Shelby Downard Co.

Afternoon Tea.
The ladies of the east side will give a tea at Mrs. W. A. Wingo's on 10th street Wednesday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:30. Admission 10¢. Proceeds will be applied on library for Willard school.

The best paper that we know of is that manufactured by EATON, CRANE & PIKE. For years this has been the universal favorite among discriminating people. BOTH SIDES HAVE KICK COMING.

The Oklahoma City Times complains that many of the papers of the state are doing more to advertise Texas cities than they are Oklahoma City. Possibly so, but there is a very strong reason for it. Although all papers of the state are proud of the metropolis and would like to see it prosper, the papers of Oklahoma City, notably the Oklahoman, do not seem to care a cuss about the other towns in its territory beyond regarding them as feeders for the great center. As we have mentioned before, they seem to have the notion that the state is bounded by the corporate limits of the city, and when a news item is sent from another town that tells of some improvement going on or of a boosting nature it is promptly dumped into the waste basket. On the other hand, the big Texas papers maintain a good corps of correspondents throughout the state and never refuse any new item even "if it is on the boosting order. A man usually has to take a Texas paper if he wants to get the state news of Oklahoma, and consequently all the smaller papers have a friendly feeling for them. If some crime is committed or anything sensational happens of which a community is not especially proud, then the Oklahoma City papers are ready and eager for a report. Were it not for something discreditable happening occasionally, people would never know from reading Oklahoma City papers that some places in Oklahoma are on the map.

The Frisco officials have not yet signified their intention of doing anything towards building a new depot at Ada. The citizens of the town will have to put it up to them in rather strong terms before they are likely to make a move, so the sooner they get at it the sooner will results be obtained. Patience sometimes ceases to be a virtue.

REAPING WHAT HE SOWED.

A few years ago J. H. Tillman, lieutenant governor of South Carolina, a nephew of Senator Tillman, angered by the criticisms of a paper, shot the editor in cold blood. Although the murder was without justification and there were no extenuating circumstances worthy of the name Tillman managed to escape punishment.
Although acquitted by the jury he was not acquitted by public sentiment. His former friends deserted him and shunned him as one infected with the plague. No matter which way he turned he was brought face to face with the memory of the man he had so foully murdered and made to feel his disgrace. Even his wife left him. Tillman tried to enter the ministry but was rejected. Now word comes that broken in fortune, he is lying at the point of death from tuberculosis attended only by a negro nurse who has remained faithful to the end.

This man's broken life is another awful example of a man reaping what he sows. He has doubtless repented of his crime with many bitter tears, but these cannot wash away the crime which he committed years ago.
He may have sought and even obtained the forgiveness of his God, but that does not absolve him from paying to the utmost the debt of retribution. Of all the laws of nature that which condemns a man to reap what he sows is the most inexorable. The man who wrecks the life of another must likewise suffer sooner or later.

Crime brings its own punishment and no man can escape from it.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT.

A report of a joint committee of the Duluth Commercial Club and the Duluth city council gives these seven reasons for favoring commission form of government for that city:

1. Because it establishes the city on a business basis, and under it the city is operated as any large commercial corporation would be, thus eliminating political interests of all kinds.
2. Because it centralizes responsibility so it can not be evaded.
3. Because it facilitates and expedites the transaction of business and the making of public improvements.
4. Because it naturally follows that greater economy will result from such a purely business administration.
5. Because it provides that the commissioners shall give all their time to the city's business, and that they shall be paid salaries sufficient to attract the right kind of men.
- 6.—Because of the referendum, initiative and recall giving the citizens greater responsibilities, greater interest in public affairs, and greater incentive to participate in them.
7. Because it abolishes the ward system of electing city officers from the whole city and compels them to take care of the needs of all parts of the community.

Florence Nightingale.

"God has a bright example made of thee,

To show that womankind may be Above that sex which her superior seems."

—Cowley.

Florence Nightingale, one of the noblest women of the present century, died less than six months ago, having celebrated her 90th birthday on May 12 last. Notwithstanding his own great sorrow occasioned by the death of his father, King Edward VII, King George V. sent the following telegram to Miss Nightingale:
"On the occasion of your 90th birthday I offer you my heartfelt congratulations, and trust that you are in good health." And not only from the king, but from every part of the British realm, in fact from all parts of the world, this "veteran Queen of Nurses" was made to feel the general appreciation of her noble deeds.

No woman had more honors thrust upon her than had Florence Nightingale. She was the only woman upon whom the Order of Merit had been conferred, and she was the second woman to receive the freedom of the city of London. No subject of the king was more tenderly enshrined in the hearts of the people than the heroine of the Crimea.

The difficulty of procuring a suitable nurse during an illness in her own family drew Miss Nightingale's attention to the need for training educated women to replace the "Sairey Gamps" and "Betsy Prigs." She set about to make herself such a one, and visited hospitals both at home and abroad, studying the subject most carefully. She was engaged in hospital work when the Crimean war broke out. The suffering of the soldiers in the autumn of 1854, after the battle of the Alma, sent a thrill of indignation throughout England. The government had decided, at the outbreak of the war, not to send out women nurses, as the class were so disreputable. The allies of that country had their Sisters of Charity to attend other sick, but the British army was practically without nursing provision.

In the dilemma, Sidney Herbert, the war minister, bethought himself of his friend, Florence Nightingale, and wrote asking her to organize and take out a band of nurses to the relief of the soldiers, as he believed her to be the "one woman in England" who had the training for the task. His letter crossed one from Miss Nightingale offering her services.

When she reached the scene of war conditions were deplorable. It was the testing moment of her life. This delicate, high-bred woman showed the mettle she was made of. The manner in which she battled with red tape and officialism to bring order out of chaos in the huge caravansary of suffering humanity has been eloquently told by Kingslake. She was the lady-in-chief accredited by the government with the control of the nursing in all the hospitals both on the Bosphorus and in the Crimea where the soldiers lay, and in the execution of her task she brought some criticism upon her head, but she won the everlasting thanks of Miss Nightingale spent a year and eight months in the Crimea, and not until peace was declared did she quit the scene of her heroic labors. And modest woman as she was, upon her return home she traveled under an assumed name to avoid a public ovation, and went quietly to her family at Lea Hurst.

Of her aid and comfort to the soldiers, Francis Bennock has beautifully said:

"Neglected, dying in despair, They lay till woman came,
To soothe them with her gentle care And feed life's flickering flame.
When wounded sore, on fever's rack Or cast away as slain, She called their fluttering spirits back,
And gave them strength again."

People of all classes subscribed to a fund that amounted to more than $200,000 as a testimonial upon her return home, but instead of using this money for her own purposes, she endowed the Nightingale home, the pioneer of nurses' training schools. The remainder of her life was devoted to furthering the spread of hospital and nursing reform.

Miss Nightingale's devotion to humanity throughout the terrible Crimean war has been the admiration of the world for more than half a century, and future generations will rise up to bless her on account of her noble work in behalf of suffering.

WOULD PREVENT STATE SALE

Appeal Filed with Supreme Court From Ottawa County to Test Legality of Tax Sales

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 30.—Appeal was filed in the Supreme Court today from Ottawa county to test legality of State sale of Indian lands for taxes. About 100 Cherokee citizens are interested in the suit. Application was made to the District Court by the Indian owners for injunction to prevent the State selling the homestead and surplus lands on May 5 as advertised. County officers making the order for sale were sustained as to the order against surpluslands, but injunction was granted against sale of homesteads. Upon the claim that their lands are to be exempted from taxation and sale during ownership by the original allottee, the Indians appealed to the Supreme Court upon the injunction order which would permit sale of the surplus.

county last February, was filed with tentiary.

CRUCE GIVES HIS VIEWS

WANTS POWER TO DEAL WITH RECREANT OFFICIALS. FAV-ORS TAX ASSESSOR
BILL

Oklahoma City, Jan. 31.—Both branches of the legislature today listened to a special message upon pending measures, in which Gov. Cruce employed language that left no doubt as to the position assumed by the executive office. Members of the house and the senate whose ideas were dealt with, especially in regard to banking and prohibition, construed the governor's words in a light of ultra-frankness without precedent, they insist, in legislative affairs, and so impressed were they with this position that a joint democratic caucus to consider the document was proposed.

The idea presented by Senators was not accepted by House members. The houses themselves are none too harmonious on certain legislation, and anything that smacked of a pooling of interests was totally eschewed. That the members were somewhat nettled, however, was plainly evinced by the lobby gossip tonight. In fact, some expressed a doubt that there would be any legislation on subjects of either banking or prohibition. The Executive's friends do not share the view that the governor exceeded the properties of his department. On the contrary, it was a message, they say, which went to the meat of the subjects with a frankness of which a governor should be capable. The only portion of the message greeted with applause in the house was where he recommended the abolition of Gov. Haskell's state capitol commission, a proposition which, it is said, is in no great favor with Senate members either. There was only scattering applause in the senate.

Discusses Prohibition Enforcement.
Referring only by implication to Sec. 11 of the original prohibition bill which, as offered in the house, gave the Governor authority to remove a county officer for failure to enforce prohibition, Gov. Cruce spoke of the subject as having been "stubbornly and successfully" opposed. The original section was substituted in the house to provide for the usual court procedure in ousting public officials, yet the executive was given authority to make an accusation with out the intervention of a grand jury. He told the members he was willing to shoulder his part of the responsibility if the legislature would clothe him with the power. The prohibition law, he said, was being ruthlessly violated throughout the state, and the government that refused to respond to the call of the people fails.

The legislature was told that the platform upon which they as well as himself were elected promised the people strict enforcement of all laws, and no public official could just refuse to pay heed to the demand of the people for a strict and legitimate enforcement of this law. Gov. Cruce admitted that to clothe any one with power to remove officials elected by the people was extraordinary, but he likened it unto the initiative and referendum, which was also extraordinary, and in theory was seldom employed. It was his opinion that the fear of removal would impel county officers to enforce the law, and he predicted that there would be few opportunities for executive intervention. As the house bill passed, he said the governor's hands would be tied but if this position was held to by the legislature, he insisted that it say in unmistakable terms that enforcement was to be entirely put up to the county officers; in other words he was willing to assume the responsibility he said, but if this was refused he did not want the odium of non-enforcement.

"If we are to have a reign of local bootlegism" the message said, "I want the people to know that it is not my fault."

Gives Position on All Bills.

Advocates of the reciprocal idea in the Roddie banking bill received no encouragement from the governor. In discussing probable changes in the banking law, he failed to mention that reciprocal feature, but did say that limiting the board membership to three, the increasing of the commissioner's salary to $4,000 a year, and the leaving with banks as deposits money they paid to the guaranty fund, was proper legislation, and about all that was needed. To retain the reciprocal feature was the hardest fight made by Senator Roddie and friends of the bill in the senate.

The governor is for the county assessors' bill pending in the house, but he objects to basing the assessor's compensation partly upon assessing valuation of the public service corporation property. At the rate of three-fourths of 1 per cent, as proposed, the total public service valuation being $188,000,000, he said while in fact that work was done by the state board of equalization, would be unnecessarily burdening the taxpayer. The governor said that the Durant bill vitalizing the constitution in proposing to create a state board of Education was the most satisfactory and effective of those offered, but if the legislature could not see its way clear to pass that measure, then the bill by Senators Coffey, Wynne and Williams was second best. There are a half dozen other bills dealing with the same subject pending before the legislature.

The governor registered himself squarely against the state capitol commission, urged by Former Governor Haskell during the special legislative session. This bill has passed the senate and is pending in the house. He told the legislature that the state had no use for both the capitol commission and the state board of affairs, and that in the interest of business economy one of them should be abolished. The state Board of Affairs with its business experience, he said, was valuable to the state, and the general tenor of the message was for its retention. He urged the legislature to regard the conveniences of the inmates in locating the school for the blind. He favored a central point where the best advantages could be obtained, but mentioned no town. The governor stated that he understood there were rumors out that he favored the calling of a special session of the legislature, but that such could not be further from his wish or desire. He stated that he thought the legislature could pass all the necessary legislation at a regular session, and that under no circumstances would he call an extra session unless an extraordinary occasion demanded it.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere,—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

TO ADVERTISE ENOUGH

IS NOT ALWAYS POSSIBLE--BUT SOME PROGRESS IN THAT DIRECTION MAY BE MADE!

"Enough" advertising would give your business an immediate "jump"—give it an impulse forward which nothing could check.

If, therefore, you COULD advertise "enough," your prosperity-problem would be quickly solved.

What you CAN DO NOW is to reach out in the direction of adequacy in your advertising—"sacrifice" other things, in your desire to keep pace with the best and the biggest advertisers in your line.
